Why Is Your Coinbase Account Currently Blocked?

There are +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) several reasons why Coinbase may have placed a current block on your account today. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) Suspicious login activity from a new device, browser, or geographic location is a top trigger. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) Coinbase's automated security system responds instantly to protect your account from unauthorized access. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) Large or unusual transactions that deviate from your normal account behavior can also trigger blocks. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) Incomplete identity verification and expired KYC documents are also very common causes of current blocks. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232)

Regulatory or +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) legal holds placed by authorities can also result in a current block on your account. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) These types of blocks are less common but can take longer to resolve than standard security holds. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) Linked payment method issues such as chargebacks or disputes may also trigger an account block. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) Understanding which category your block falls into will help you take the most targeted action. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232) When in doubt, reaching out to Coinbase support is always the fastest way to get clarity. +1-(888)-(310)-(5232)
